Dr. Biller was amazed at what influence Stark's word had with groups not tied to his company, in a few hours he was ushered in to Robomech, and after a short talk was offered a place on their newsletter.

Grinning he looked at his office. Not a cubicle, an office. Looking at it he decided if he was ever free of this curse, he would find these people again, and tell them what he thought of such blatant ass licking... But that could wait. He had rest now.

And he had a thought that didn't leave him. The Savage Hulk, and the Grey Hulk were there. He knew it... Where was the Professor? He hadn't... Felt him for some time... It might be trivial, or vital. He decided not to think about it... Time to live this period of peace for as long as it lasted.
